

Sean M. Flynn

Fine Art Photographer

Twenty-seven-year-old photographer and award-winning filmmaker Sean M. Flynn was born in London, England, grew up mostly in Southern California, and currently resides in Los Angeles.

In a few short years, Sean has achieved more artistically than many others through his unique vision, his painterly and lyrical photographic style, capturing and presenting stunning landscapes and architectural compositions, and hauntingly beautiful nude portraits.

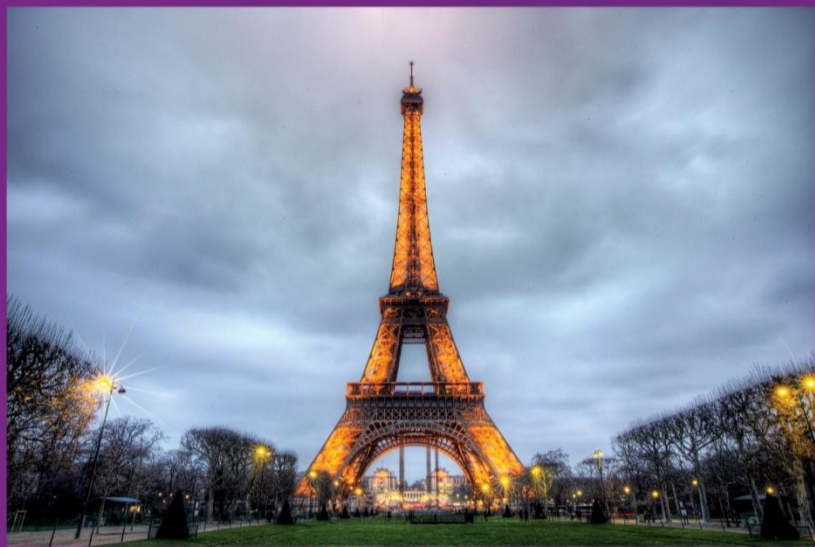

As a still photographer, Sean invented his own version of the method of High Dynamic Range (HDR) photography using his Canon 7D camera. He takes at least three different exposure shots of his subject and merges them as one. Sean doesn't manipulate the images with filters, polarizers or Photoshop. The photographs are all taken using natural light. Landscapes, architectural and nude portraits are the main subjects of his still photography. "I approach all of my photos with a filmmaker and storyteller's eye. That's why the majority of them seem very cinematic."
